OCTOBER 2021 HIGHLIGHTS

Notes:

* October is the month of transformation in desert landscapes. The weather cools to ideal planting and growing temperatures. Plants are no longer stressed by the extreme heat of Summer.

Irrigation times and intervals will change to accommodate variables in weather and the needs of new plantings as they establish.

Lawns will be overseeded with ryegrass this month. Water will be reduced significantly as the grass is lowered in the weeks prior to seeding. Once the seed has been spread it must be kept wet. Irrigation will be set to run every couple of hours throughout the day. The new turf will be mowed in the third week after planting.

Annual flowers are usually planted this month. Pesticides may need to be applied to protect new plants.

October is an ideal month for planting projects.

Overgrown plants can now be pruned without having to worry about sunburn damage. Burned foliage from summer heat can be safely removed at this time. Shrubs can be fertilized to aid in recovery.
